Bryan Balogh is a seasoned litigator who came to Burr & Forman from one of the finest boutique litigation firms in the Southeast.

Known for his calm and considered approach to solving difficult issues, Bryan regularly represents and counsels clients in litigation matters throughout the country. Bryan focuses his practice on complex business litigation involving disputes with significant risk and damages, with a particular emphasis on class action litigation involving corporations and financial institutions.

Bryan has had the privilege to collaborate with lawyers throughout the country on litigation involving common clients and issues. In this regard, Bryan has served as regional and national coordinating counsel, and has also served as local counsel in matters coordinated outside the State of Alabama. Bryan also has experience in the areas of professional liability defense, products manufacturing, telecommunications litigation, broker/dealer litigation, and mortgage litigation.
