Orlando, Fla., Dec. 17, 2015 - Burr & Forman's Orlando office welcomed students from the Orange Center Elementary School chorus on December 10. The children, many of whom had never visited a downtown office building, were given a tour of the SunTrust Tower before performing several songs for Burr & Forman's attorneys and staff. Santa Claus was also in attendance and presented the students with gifts. The visit concluded with holiday treats and a small reception for the students, attorneys and staff.

"Each year when we host this event, we start out believing that we're doing our part to brighten the children's holiday, but in the end, we are the ones who are touched by their gratefulness and joy," said Eric Golden, managing partner of Burr & Forman's Orlando office. "Service to our community is one of our firm's core values, and we are grateful for the chance to give back to this wonderful and talented group of children."

The visit from Orange Center Elementary School is a part of the firm's ongoing commitment to Central Florida's education programs.
