With 23 attorneys and 23 staff members based in Tampa, the firm is recognized as a top employer in the large company category. The survey measures 10 key engagement categories focusing on items including team effectiveness, trust in senior leaders, feeling valued, manager effectiveness, and compensation and benefits.

"We are honored to be recognized as one of the area's Best Places to Work," said William (Bill) Schifino, Jr., managing partner of Burr & Forman's Tampa office. "Our office has a long tradition of commitment to our attorneys and staff, and since our combination with Burr & Forman in October, we have focused on maintaining the collegial culture that has made us successful for 22 years."

The Tampa honor joins Burr's previous selections as a "Best Place to Work" in the Atlanta Business Chronicle and the Birmingham Business Journal.
