

Ed Christian Quoted in American Lawyer on Millennials in the Legal Industry

Firm News
11.28.2017

In an article published on November 27 on Law.com, Ed Christian delves into the 10-lawyer associate advisory committee he created and provides insight on how to get the most out of a firm's youngest lawyers, detailing, "I think they like concreteness. They want to know what's there and see it." Millennials have a lot to offer - particularly technological knowledge that was not formerly prominent - and are eager to learn not just work, "They're interested and inquisitive and want to know about the business of running a law firm," Christian reflected.
